THURSDAY, MAY 30, 1907.

It looks as though the divorce fever was epidemic in the Gould family.

It looks as though Senator Foraker was pretty successfully playing sun to Boss Cox's ground-hog.

That minister who performed the Corey-Gillman marriage, evidently wishes now he had had his second thoughts first.

Texas papers claim that Senator Culberson's position as minority leader of the Senate is assured. Well, there is scarcely any place he could do less harm.

The report that Secretary Cortelyou is a secret enemy of Secretary Taft's presidential aspirations is wide of the mark. The Secretary of the Treasury is entirely too shrewd a man for that and while it is probable that he has ultimate hopes of the presidency, he does not even think of the nomination at the coming convention. He is a close friend of President Roosevelt and such a thing as undermining Judge Taft would be treachery to his chief which he would not commit for politics, if not for ethical reasons. Secretary Cortelyou is a young man and has lots of time ahead of him for presidential aspirations, and if he eventually acchieves them, which is not at all unlikely, it will be a pretty inspiring example for American boys. The rise from a department stenographer to president is certainly about as great as that "from the log cabin to the White House".

It will be a satisfaction to everyone to have it from the lips of Secretary Wilson himself that the meat inspection business is on a sound basis and that the public is getting all it had any reason to hope from the government supervision of the packing houses. The Secretary of Agriculture has just been on a tour of the west and rounded up all the chief meat inspectors for a talk in Chicago. He reports that the inspection work is going forward satisfactorily, that there have been a number of modern and sanitary packing houses built since the law went into effect less than a year ago. More than that there is about $2,500-000 being invested in other new houses, cement built and a credit to the business. To be sure, the improvement is no fault of the packers. They never would have come to it but for the prodding of the Administration through the press. The public has had to pay for the improvements in the enhanced cost of meat, but at least we are now getting what we pay for and American meat products are ranked as first class all over the world. That probably is worth the price.

A monument has just been erected at Raleigh, N. C., to Ensign Worth Bagley, the only American naval officer who was killed during the war with Spain.

Bagley fell doing his duty on the Winslow at Cardenas, and the monument is only a fitting tribute to a gallant and loyal young officer. But at the same time there are some of the men in that war who were not killed and whose services though just as conspicuous have never been recognized. For instance, there was a marine, just a common enlisted man, and probably everyone has forgotten even his name by this time, who stood on a ridge at the battle of Cusco Mountain and wig-wagged to the American fleet to stop firing when they were tossing shells inland into the ranks of the Americans under the impression that they were shelling the Spaniards. He had to get up from under cover and was a target for three hundred Spanish rifles all the while he was signaling. Why they did not kill him nobody could ever understand. But they did not and he returned to the ranks with the satisfaction of duty well performed—and nothing else. It does seem as though even at this late day he might be looked up and something done for him. Honor to the dead is fitting and proper, but it would be a lot of satisfaction to the living sometimes to get a little of what is due them.

Sir Chentung Liang Cheng is about to return to China from his post as Minister to Washington.
He has been an affable and able diplomat during his sojourn in this country, though not so much in the public eye as his predecessor, Wu Ting Fang. But he will go back to the Chinese Empire with full honors and be given a seat on the Council of State, and the chances are that his return will be marked by some fresh antiforeign outbreak such as marked the return of the versatile Mr.
Wu. We are perhaps in the habit of measuring the Chinaman too much by the Chinese laundry-man. China is by scores of centuries an older civilization than ours. True, she has been asleep for centuries, but she is waking up. She has been waking up for about fifty years and one of the first facts that she has grasped is that she has not been treated as a great power by the "western barbarians", that is, who have broken in on her slumber and insisted on doing business with her. She has sent some of her brightest and brainiest men abroad and finding that the weak spot of the Occidental was his pocket, she has insisted on better treatment from the west and backed her claims by choking off so far as possible western trade.
Wu Ting Fang was pleasant and observant while here and when he went home immediately instituted the great Chinese boycott. Now that Sir Chentung is going, having absorbed all he could of western ideas and methods, the chances are he will have some new method of making it warm for the westerner in the Far east. It will be interesting to note what course his activities take, for that there will be something fresh doing on his return home is almost a foregone conclusion.

THE PROGRESS.

PITH AND POINT.

It's a good thing not to be a "good thing."
Trouble is something that generally visits us without warning.
Put yourself in your neighbor's place, and you would stop abusing him.
Money talks—and a few pennies make more noise than a hundred dollar bill.
It isn't difficult to form a fairly good idea of what people think of you by what they say of others.—Chicago News.

THE LOST MAN

One evening a man came into a New York restaurant and sat down opposite another man.
"Dalton," the newcomer said.
"Well, Holloway?" said the other.
"So I am, so far as you're concerned. Who'd have thought you'd turn up here?"
"Yes, what luck! I thought New York was big enough to turn around in without stumbling over some confounded old acquaintance."
"Old acquaintance—well, that's pretty cool. However, I shan't bother you.
You needn't be afraid of me. I'm not going back out there, and if you ever do I'll trouble you to keep a still tongue. You needn't say you saw me.
Understand?"

"Oh, yes," said the other man. "But I don't bank much on going back myself. I'm about sick of this country. I don't blame you for wanting to keep out. But, I say, that was a funny thing, your dropping out the way you did. Everybody thinks you're dead or loco and shut up somewhere. They had no end of a time looking for you—dragged the river."

"I was down in Mexico. How long ago did you leave Calif.—Reg your pardon! I withdraw the question unless it happens to be—"
"Oh, it doesn't matter. I left eight months ago. I'm only here—for a few days—just passing through."

"Yes? Let's see: it's two, three years since I came away. Do you know what this reminds me of? Two hurrying shapes, don't you know, in No Man's Land met each other face to face—very awkward sometimes—and bade each other stand."

"Sounds like footpads," suggested the nervous man.
"No; it's poetry. Well, they asked each other's name—"

Here the two men looked at one another, and the nervous man broke into a giggle.
"Exactly. We won't do that." He emptied his glass and set it down.
"They call this stuff California claret," he said. "Look here, don't you want some news?"

"News?" The quiet man blinked uncertainly for a moment and then said:
"Yes, I suppose so. What is it?"
"Well, I meant—You know Sharp-less is mayor now. We got him in last year, and it was the biggest fight the town ever saw. Jim Luke got the city attorneyship. He's in the new city hall, with velvet carpets and hand painted spittoons. Oh, the boys are all right. And you wouldn't know the place—brick blocks going up everywhere and cable cars on Main street."

The quiet man began to eat his sparrow and strings salad. "I suppose so," he said. "Well, of course it's none of my business. I suppose you hear from out there anyway."

"Not a word," said the quiet man.
"But go ahead if you've got anything to tell."

"Well, it's only about—confound it!— your wife. Say, Dalton, why in thunder—it's none of my business, but it's pretty hard on her."

"She must think I'm dead. I am dead."

"Well, she doesn't. She's still looking for you. When they didn't find you in the river, you know, she had detectives. They combed San Francisco for you."

The quiet man moved uneasily. "Detectives cost money," he said.
"They do. She's teaching now in the public schools. The boys put that through. She gets $95 a month, and that about feeds the five young ones."

"I left her enough. I left her half the money I had. If I could have fixed it so, she could have got my life insurance."

"Well, why didn't you? There was the river. Excuse me, old man, but is this any better?"

"Oh, yes," said Dalton dreamily. "I have a quiet life—all day in the library if I like. You've no idea what a racket five children can make in a small house. And then out there I never could get the books I wanted—the lattists of the fourth century, for instance. And then, you know, a woman —a woman who's fond of you. It explains why the philosophers were monks. But I'm getting pretty close to bedrock," he added, frowning. "I don't like to eat in these places. And to see you here!"

"Yes, I know," said Holloway hastily, "but I've got just enough to take me where I'm going. I pulled out with about $600, though the boys wouldn't believe you if you told 'em. I suppose they think I'm living in cotton—Monte Carlo or there."

"Six hundred! Why, you used to have your list in deep. What's the matter—lost your pull?"

"Nellie's got it—my wife, you know, —that is, all I could pull out. Say, Dalton, I don't mind telling you—I don't suppose you'd give me away, and if you did I'd be the police—"

"The law can't touch me," said Dalton.
Holloway's face flushed dully.

"Perhaps not, but I wouldn't change places with you. My wife's living in Europe—been there for a year. She's living well too. She was always crazy to go. She's got enough to make her comfortable for some time, and I'm going—well, never mind. I'd do it over again. I tell you, Dalton, for a woman you're fond of—what's the use of talking to you? Might as well talk to a Latin grammar."

Dalton contemplated his cheese and withered pears and thin coffee resignedly.
"If I didn't have to eat," he said, "I'd be all right. I want few things, God knows."

"I said Holloway under his breath,
"want only one."—New York Advertiser.

NEW SHORT STORIES

Lumped the Advice.
A New Orleans man said regretfully of the late Harold Van Buren, the American consul to Nice:

Every American traveler will be sorry to hear of the death of this distinguished man. He was an ideal consul, entertaining hospitality, the rich visitors to the Riviera, and very charitable, very helpful to such poor folk as found themselves in troubles in the gay town of Nice.

Tall, slender, quiet, I can see him yet. One day I met him in the many charities he was after a street.
"Oh, yes," he answered. "And of ten, though. And when I am destroyed."

For Strangers Only.
J. Edward Attridge was condemning a certain politician. "The man has no experience," he said, "and he has not sense enough to conceal his lack of experience. He reminds me of an incident that took place in a barber shop the other day."

"I think you're mistaken. You've not met him twice now. If you can't share better than this, every regular customer will leave you."

"But the young barber pushed the man's head back on the velvet rest and laughed."

"Oh, no," he said. "No fear of that.
I'm not allowed to have regular customers yet. I only shave strangers!"
—Boston Post.

Heads I Win, Tails You Lose.
"Some don't," said John W. Gates, "not all women, but some of them, are very poor speculators, very poor gamblers."

"A young friend of mine has a pretty coin. He was going to the races the other day, and she called him up on the telephone and asked him to bet $10 on the best horse for her."

"Very well," he said. "If it is your money, I'll bet you back, you horrid thing!" exclaimed the coin.
"All right," said she. "You didn't last time."

"Oh, well," said she, "last time the horse didn't win, you know."

Shortcomings of the Typewriter.
Thomas A. Edison criticized at Atlantic City a scientific writer. "He is a fine chap," said the inventor, "but he knows nothing about machinery. His knowledge of machinery is like that of a business man to whom I talked one day. It was at the time when typewriters had first come out, and the man had taken several on trial and was testing them to see which if any he should buy."

"Well," said I, "how do you like these typewriters you are trying?"
"He shrugged impatiently. 'Oh,' he said, 'they're all about alike. They print well enough, but they don't spell one word in three correctly.'"

His Main Product.
"I hear your husband is an inventor," Mrs. Harding. "What are his principal works in that direction?"
"Excuses for not working."—Baltimore American.

CHRONIC DISEASES.
The Doctor treats no acute diseases, but makes a specialty of chronic and long-standing diseases. Cases given up by other doctors and pronounced incurable, he most desiring to see. Dr. Kutchin has treated over 12,000 cases in this in the last two years, many of which had been given up as incurable, some to be blind, others deaf, and a large number to be invalids for life. It is a wonderful gift for anyone to possess, and Dr. Kutchin's diagnostic powers have created wonder throughout the country.

His Improved Methods of Treatment.
As mild and pleasant, agree perfectly with the most delicate Lady or Child; do not reduce strength, and are given up by other doctors and pronounced incurable, he most desiring to see. Dr. Kutchin has treated over 12,000 cases in this in the last two years, many of which had been given up as incurable, some to be blind, others deaf, and a large number to be invalids for life. It is a wonderful gift for anyone to possess, and Dr. Kutchin's diagnostic powers have created wonder throughout the country.

Consultation free and strictly confidential. Absolute cures guaranteed. No risk incurred.

A LIFE OF EXPERIENCE.
The Doctor has had a whole life of study and experience in his profession, and enjoys advantages which fall to the lot of but few. After attending the Full Courses in the Medical College, and graduating with the highest honors, he was not content to stop there, but has since attended other Colleges, and several times reviewed the whole profession; has also traveled extensively for the purpose of improvement, having visited the best Medical Colleges, Hospitals, Dispensaries, Asylums, and other Medical and Surgical Institutions, traveling thousands of miles, both by land and sea, expending thousands of dollars in improving every advantage within his command, and devoting the best years of his life to become thoroughly familiar with his profession in all its branches.

LATEST DISCOVERIES AND IMPROVEMENTS.
Dr. Kutchin has received the most approved instruction in Analytical and Microscopical Examination of the Blood, Urine, etc., which are now considered indispensable to a correct diagnosis in many diseases. There are many diseases which physicians in common practice do not usually treat, and are, therefore, seldom prepared with accuracy and costly outlay to examine correctly, or treat, such diseases. Dr. Kutchin, however, would be glad to see his patients at his residence, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street.

FACTS FOR MEN OF ALL AGES.
By reason of false modesty the youth of our land are kept in ignorance of the numerous diseases which certain military induced practice produce. These diseases, when contracted, generally undermine the constitution, inducing nervous debility and premature decay. Dr. Kutchin has for many years enjoyed the distinction of being the most successful and celebrated specialist for the treatment and cure of such diseases. You may consult him during the hours of his office, or at his residence, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street.

DELAY IS DANGEROUS.
Many diseases are so deceptive that hundreds of persons have them before they even suspect it. They know they are not well, but are perfectly ignorant of the deadly cause which is lurking upon them, and must, sooner or later, certainly destroy them, unless relieved by a skillful hand. Are you afflicted? Your case may not be perfectly curable, but, nevertheless, every moment of neglect brings you nearer its fatal stage, when, perhaps, the most skillful physician and the most skillful treatment would be of no avail. Dr. Kutchin, however, would be glad to see his patients at his residence, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street.

The Doctor has had a whole life of study and experience in his profession, and enjoys advantages which fall to the lot of but few. After attending the Full Courses in the Medical College, and graduating with the highest honors, he was not content to stop there, but has since attended other Colleges, and several times reviewed the whole profession; has also traveled extensively for the purpose of improvement, having visited the best Medical Colleges, Hospitals, Dispensaries, Asylums, and other Medical and Surgical Institutions, traveling thousands of miles, both by land and sea, expending thousands of dollars in improving every advantage within his command, and devoting the best years of his life to become thoroughly familiar with his profession in all its branches.

Dr. Kutchin has received the most approved instruction in Analytical and Microscopical Examination of the Blood, Urine, etc., which are now considered indispensable to a correct diagnosis in many diseases. There are many diseases which physicians in common practice do not usually treat, and are, therefore, seldom prepared with accuracy and costly outlay to examine correctly, or treat, such diseases. Dr. Kutchin, however, would be glad to see his patients at his residence, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street.

By reason of false modesty the youth of our land are kept in ignorance of the numerous diseases which certain military induced practice produce. These diseases, when contracted, generally undermine the constitution, inducing nervous debility and premature decay. Dr. Kutchin has for many years enjoyed the distinction of being the most successful and celebrated specialist for the treatment and cure of such diseases. You may consult him during the hours of his office, or at his residence, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street, or at his office, 123 East Fifth Street.

DELAY IS DANGEROUS.
